Into that mix has exploded an international trade tempest that is threatening to make all

Semiconductormakers, whose market return approached 40% in 2016 and 2017, just saw profits plunge 20%. With a 25% tariff rate instead of the current 10% level, gross margins for 5&P 500 companies could shrink by 23 basis points, according to Bloomberg Intelligence. If pressure on margins that was-n't there before."

To convince themselves profit growth is salvageable, bulls must put an uncomfortable amount of faith in distant forecasts. With little expected to materialise in the first three quarters, earnings will supposedly surge 8% in the fourth, turning the full-year green. Waiting that long was never going to be easy. Doing that with China and the US battling in public strikes some as impossible.

"You really need to have the global economy kick in to drive 5&P earnings for the second half of the year," Alicia Levine.

BNY Mellon Investment Man-agement chief strategist, salevi-sion elso an Bloomberg Ted-sion. If you continue with the trade war, then you'll put earnings at risk. It's not simply about trade. It's the way US corporate import weakness from overseas through their top line."

Another worry is the poten-ially inflationary impact.

Another worry is the poten-itally inflationary impact of tariffs, something that could push Federal Reserve chair-man Jerome Powell back into action — a chilling thought for longs. On this point, however, Wall Street is divided. — BLOOMBERG
